Task 2.2P – Question 6
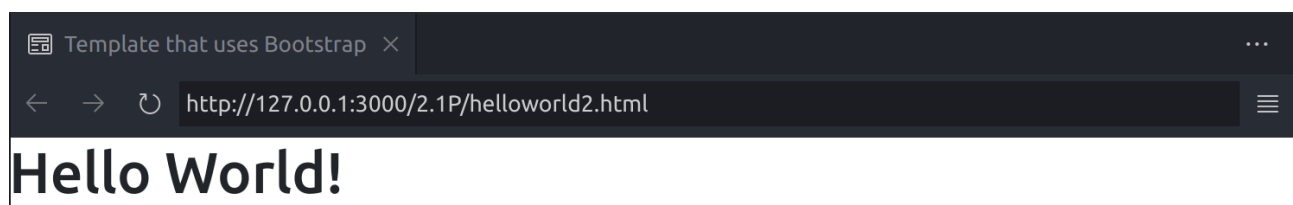

1. The font type in helloworld2.html is different from helloworld.html that we created in the first week.

helloworld2.html   helloworld.html

2. When we remove , the indentation of the text is removed and the text is aligned to the left border

After removing the div

Before removing the div

3. The  structure is used to give a practical method of grouping and arranging material or items on a webpage. By giving a div the container class, you may design and control all of the contained items at once or just the container itself. The "container" class in Bootstrap is used to build a responsive, fixed-width container whose size and margins change depending on the viewport or device width. It aids in designing consistent layouts for various screen sizes.
